

Discover Feed Logic:

Situation 1:

If a user creates a group, then it will say in the feed:

“Jack is doing Weight Loss at YMCA Boston”

If another user creates the same group “Weight Loss at YMCA Boston” -- then the button will now say “2 people are doing Weight Loss at YMCA Boston”. Also, that user gets added to the list of members.

If another user just enters the group – then nothing happens. That user is not tallied to the total or is considered a member.

If that user clicks “Join” – then they get added to the members list and they get tallied to the total.

Situation 2:

If a user comments on an activity then this gets pushed to the feed, looking like this:

“Sam commented on the proposed activity “Basketball at YMCA Boston”

Only three of the comments that are proposed will actually get pushed to the feed. We will do this so that the feed never gets flooded with comments.

Situation 3:

A user can only propose two activities a day. This is so a user cannot abuse system.
